behavioral studies with a lead author in the united states showed an especially strong tendency to find what researchers had predicted before performing the research.